HISTORY OF BREWING IN SAN DIEGO

- 1868: Conrad Dobbler establishes San Diego Brewery, the first commercial brewing operation in the region, producing about 200 barrels annually.
- 1897: San Diego Brewing Company opens, producing about 140,000 barrels annually. This full-scale industrial operation was the first to use mechanical refrigeration in the City of San Diego.
- 1920-1933: PROHIBITION
- 1935: Following the Volstead Act's repeal in 1933, commercial brewing comes back to SD full swing, with San Diego Brewing Company & Aztec Brewing Company producing 25% of the beer produced in California that year.
- 1953: Large national breweries start to overtake the industry throughout the 40s and 50s. Altes Brewing Company closes its doors. Beer would not be commercially produced in San Diego county for another 34 years.
- 1982: California legislation legalizes the brew pub, setting the stage for Bolt Brewing in Fallbrook to begin brewing in 1987, and sparking more widespread interest in craft beer in San Diego County.
- 2016: Now home to over 120 breweries—San Diego's craft beer explosion is the result of a vibrant homebrewing community, a culture of patriotism among pro-brewers, and a region of supportive patrons!
